Top Austrian Wine makers

In this wine tour you enjoy an interesting overview of the diversity in the Austrian Wine culture. Starting in the "Wachau", Grüner Veltliner and Riesling are growing on steep vineyard terraces on both sides of the Danube. Here, one hour west of Vienna, are the ideal conditions for these white wine specialties. Cool humidity from north meets warm dry from the Pannonian plain. That is reflected in juicy, finesse-rich white wines, especially Grüner Veltliner and Riesling, from light, fragrant types to full-bodied white wines. Later, in a short trip to Burgenland, the most eastern part of Austria, you taste the full bodied red wines, getting their flavor in the long vegetation period with about 2000 hours of sun.

Monika Caha Selection Tour – “Discover the origin of Grüner Veltliner” - The Wine Estates

Weingut Meinhard Forstreiter

Wine Region: Kremstal in Lower Austria. The Forstreiter family has been making wine since 1868, but it has been the current owner and winemaker, Meinhard Forstreiter, who has brought the vineyard to a new level of quality and reputation. The vineyard is situated in Krems-Hollenburg in the Kremstal, along the right bank of the Danube River, across from the Wachau. There has been wine production in and around Hollenburg since the Roman Empire.

For his Grüner Veltliner 2006 he achieved 92 Scores in the rating of WINE SPECTATOR and is among the 100 “Most exciting wines”!

Weingut Johann Donabaum

Wine Region: Wachau (Lower Austria). Johann Donabaum may be only 29 years old, but he is a rising star of the Wachau. Despite his youth, he has been winemaker of his family estate for a number of years. Having trained for this all of his life, Donabaum graduated from the Krems School of Viticulture while still in his teens and had a seven-month apprenticeship with F X Pichler which gained him a great deal of new ideas and insights. His philosophy is quality first and foremost. Donabaum achieved several awards for his Grüner Veltliner Smaragd and Riesling Smaragd, and his wines achieved between 90 to 94 points in the WINE SPECTATOR ratings during 2008.

Weingut Fritsch

Wine Region: Wagram (Lower Austria). Karl Fritsch believes that quality originates in the vineyard. The Fritsch estate is situated in Oberstockstall, in the Wagram, along the Danube River. During ancient times, powerful winds blew fine particles of sand, creating a huge barrier of löss soil, with pockets of loam and gravel under the surface – the hills of the Wagram. The core varieties are Grüner Veltliner and Riesling, but also about 30% red wines, like Pinot Noir and Zweigelt. Vinification: Bio Dynamic methods.

Graf Hardegg

Wine Region: Weinviertel, (Lower Austria). The castle and estate belonging to the Hardegg family are located 75 kilometres north of Vienna, along the border of the Czech Republic. Seefeld Castle, which was built at the beginning of the 18th Century on the foundations of a medieval fortress, dominates the landscape here. The goal is to create wines produced by completely natural means, reflecting origin, terroir and a unique character. In the 41 hectares ripen 65% white and 35 % red wine varieties, and you find specialties like the “Viognier”, the only one in Austria. Vineyard/Vinification method: BIO DYNAMIC METHODS.

Weingut Nittnaus:

The Nittnaus family has been in the town of Gols, in the Neusiedler See wine region in Burgenland since 1684. In 1990, Hans Nittnaus created the name “Pannobile” from the word “Pannonia” (a Roman word describing the terroir) to produce a terroir driven premium wine using primarily indigenous grapes. Since 1994, “Pannobile” is also a consortium of 9 winemakers in the town of Gols, each of whom create their own distinct “Pannobile” wine. In 2004, a new property on the west side of the Neusiedlersee, the Leithaberg site (a 400m high hill formation with slate and limestone soil) became the primary focus for the Blaufraenkisch grape.
